SOCOM 16 MODELS

Prior to Springfield Armory® introducing the SOCOM 16 in 2004, .308 WIN power in a package this small was previously thought of as impossible. Our engineers accepted this challenge and built a compact tactical rifle ideal for CQB. Those who need a compact rifle no longer have to settle for a smaller caliber, and with the M1A™ SOCOM 16's unique muzzle design, they can experience less felt recoil and muzzle rise.

A modernized descendant of the distinguished M14 and M1A rifles, the SOCOM 16 CQB is designed for serious defensive use as its Close Quarters Battle name implies. Nearly ten inches shorter than the M1A standard model, the CQB offers quick and easy handling for defensive use indoors or out.

As the M14 platform began to dominate competitive rifle shooting, several performance-oriented upgrades to the design gained popularity. Today, shooters who want the extra features can find what they need in the Springfield Armory® M1A Loaded Series.

It combines the appearance and tradition of the Standard M1A™ with all the features you want in a high-performance rifle... a medium-weight premium air-gauged National Match (NM) barrel for greater accuracy, an NM tuned 4.5-5lb, two-stage trigger, NM front sight blade and a non-hooded NM rear aperture for precise target acquisition.
